

Wales Bioinformatics Network

What is the Wales Bioinformatics Network?

A forum for scientific and medical researchers and bioinformaticians to share their experience of working with data, learn from peers and engage with invited speakers

How often does the network meet?

Online, quarterly for 1 hour - meetings will feature invited speakers showcasing valuable data resources, analysis platforms and big data research

Who is it for?

Anyone who analyses cancer, rare disease, or infectious disease data in the course of their research, including PhD students

How do I join?

Follow this link to sign up to the group, and you will be notified of any meeting details

Where can I get more information?

Contact
wcrc@cardiff.ac.uk